REPORT

The NSS Cell at the University of Mumbai, along with IMA MAHA, Organ Donation Committee, and Organs Foundation, initiated an online training program for organ donation. This collaboration shows a proactive approach to raise awareness and educate people about organ donation. The training covers medical and legal aspects, ethical considerations, and the importance of creating a supportive environment. Using online platforms makes it accessible to a wider audience, promoting inclusivity and reaching people from different backgrounds. The University of Mumbai's NSS Cell, with these organizations, is making significant progress in promoting organ donation culture through innovative and accessible training, improving knowledge and societal attitudes towards this noble cause.
